Design meets modern

From top to bottom

Home living is more than an end in itself: nothing reflects your personal signature, taste, style and attitude as much as your own four walls. Those who get to design a brand new house just as they want are lucky. Like a family in the Zurich area in Switzerland, which was able to perfectly implement its concept with the support of the capable architects and craftsmen from the joinery firm, Abu Bernet Schreinerei AG. From the wine cellar to the wardrobe, from the TV corner to the library, a clear colour and design concept, which is unrivalled in its elegance, runs through the house.

Metallic Shimmer

"We worked closely with the clients and architects to develop a colour concept," outlines Fabian Bertolo from the joinery firm based in Uznach. "Perlmausgrau" [Pearl mouse grey] is the key word: most of the vertical surfaces, from the wardrobe doors to the drawer fronts and dampers, are painted in this extraordinary, shimmering colour (RAL 7048). "This colour contains iron pigments – for the surface to turn out regular in spite of this was a major challenge. Thanks to optimal support from ADLER, we achieved a perfect result," praises Bertolo. Designed with ADLER Pigmopur in this special colour and painted with a protective coat of ADLER Pigmotop G30, the surfaces now withstand any stresses.

Perfectly Matched

ADLER closely assisted Abu Bernet Schreinerei altogether when it came to sampling and implementing the colour concept. "We matched the oak surfaces in the wine cellar and in the dressing area with the floor," outlines Fabian Bertolo. This was managed with the wood stain Arova Aqua Colora in a specially sampled colour. The surfaces were coated with ADLER Isopur G10 available in Switzerland. Where the oak needed to be shown off in a dark shade – for instance at a seating niche in the wardrobe area or all around the television recessed flush in the wall, the wood stain ADLER Positiv Plus and the varnish ADLER Legnopur G30 were used.

Attractive Contrast

One particular jewel in the crown is the library: here the shelves, painted in a rich deep black [Tiefschwarz] (ADLER Pigmopur NSC S9000N and ADLER Pimotop G30), create an attractive contrast to the metallic green fronts.

The whole arrangement is a prime example of the high quality interior design work to which Abu Bernet Schreinerei – alongside shopfitting – has dedicated itself. "We design space" is, not without reason, the motto of the Swiss company: everyone comes alive in a space designed like this!
